

The lies of Roulettephysics.com

Today I will tell you about the fake winning systems and the useless, overpriced roulette computers of Roulette Physics. Buyer beware!

Think about it: If you had a successful method of making millions on the roulette table using some super-duper roulette computer, would you waste your time all day on the web, writing BS about others? If you had a working roulette computer would you have being sued and convicted for fraud, by your buyers? If you had a way to win at roulette, would you spend all day managing over 20 sites and 5 different forums? And try really hard, yet unsuccessfully, on each and every one of them, to sell your overpriced junk you call with fancy names like "hybrid roulette system" or "JAA System"?

The Roulette Systems & Strategies That Are Winning Fortunes, and How To Get Them Free

Well, meet Steven Hourmouzis. Someone who apparently believes that a fool is born every second and is constantly and tirelessly looking for buyers among them. He condemns each and every roulette system known to man, yet he has the nerve to advertise: "The Roulette Systems & Strategies That Are Winning Fortunes, and How To Get Them Free". If you believe this you would believe anything!

He knows that not everyone will part with his hard earned money to buy a useless roulette computer, so he tries to lure buyers by promising "winning systems". And if you ask him if the systems he presents in his site really work, he would tell you, well, if you really need a winning system you need to buy my $1,500 or $2,500 or $50,000 roulette computer. Yes, believe it or not he has "successful roulette computers" in all price ranges. He even has a $50,000 roulette computer. After all, you never know for how much money you can take someone for a ride. And there will always be players with more money than sense.

Now, let's recap. He advertises that he is giving free winning roulette systems. Then he sells something for $1,500, then something else for $2,500 and his best computer for $50,000.

computer. After all, you never know for how much money you can take someone for a ride. And there will always be players with more money than sense.

Now, let's recap. He advertises that he is giving free winning roulette systems. Then he sells something for $1,500, then something else for $2,500 and his best computer for $50,000. Does this makes sense to you? Why sell something for thousands of dollars, if you give a winning system for free? I don't know how more plainly to put it that: If something sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

The Roulette Systems & Strategies That Are Winning Fortunes, and How To Get Them Free

Yeah right!

I really don't know how many people have fallen for this BS and have parted with their hard earned money. There is still hope though. You see Steven Hourmouzis have been successfully sued in 2013 and the "happy buyer" of his computer eventually got his money back. But it was a long battle.

MEMBER A. DEA

Steven Hourmouzis is not new to the web. As I already said he owns (has bought) a myriad of roulette sites and forums where he tries to promote his new site: roulettephysics.com. Although he has all these already established sites, in 2015 he created this new site. The reason? To hide. You see, people weren't trusting him and were hearing nightmare stories about him and his products. So he decided to start a fresh. With a new site. With his name nowhere to be found on the site. Hidden behind "companies" like Natural Laboratories Pty Ltd skype names like "rouletteanalysis" and other legit sounding tricks to hide and prey for new "happy customers".

Why am I telling you this? Why do I care?

First, we write this in order to inform any potential buyers that roulettephysics.com is not what it seems to be. The guy behind that site has a dark history. The old timers know all about him, but the newbies don't. They can be fooled.

Secondly, he has the nerve to attack us. You see, we are one of the few independent, informative sites about roulette he hasn't bought. He can not stand this. Oh and he hates our system, the Kavouras bet. He is so over the edge, he tried to bash a system he does not know (!), just from reading the first part of our system: our bet selection. He tries to diminish our systems using silly arguments like "no system wins", while at the same time he advertises "Roulette Systems & Strategies That Are Winning Fortunes". Well, he probably means that they will win a fortune for him, by deceiving potential buyers.

Thanks for your office looking into this matter. As leaders in promoting US Australian commerce I know you don't like to hear about companies and individuals that tarnish that relationship. The company, Site Promotions Ltd, a.k.a. Steven George Hourmouzis is operating an international internet based theft ring out of Victoria in which they sell a nonexistent software package to unsuspecting buyers all over the world via fraudulent internet sites.

The individual that runs this ring, Steven George Hourmouzis was convicted in the past with violating US Australian Securities and Exchange laws and served part of a two year sentence in Australia for trying to manipulate the market and defrauding countless investors who had money invested in the market at that time.

I will keep your office updated on the action and will forward you the judgement results of the action so your office can follow up on this activity to ensure other innocent people do not fall victim to this operation. I will also be following up with U.S. Representatives Senators Hon Patrick Casey and Hon Robert Toomey and Congressman Hon Mike Fitzpatrick so they can followup with your office as well.

Additionally I have will be following up with Nine News Melbourne, Seven News Melbourne, and ABC News Victoria so they can provide consumer alerts and make them aware both of your offices efforts and the local VCAT civil efforts. Thanks again for your assistance.

Regards
